Social and Personal

Miss Annie Hoge left Richmond on Sunday for "Blandfield," in Essex County, where she is to be one of the attendants at the double wedding of Miss Mary Scott Beverley, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Beverley, to Rev. Herbert Stabler Osburn, and Miss Richardetta Carter Osburn, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William Beverley, to Dr. James Clark Killey. The brides are double first cousins, and their wedding to-morrow afternoon at 2 o'clock is to be a notable event. "Blandfield" is one of the most historic estates in that section of Virginia, and an interesting house party has been in progress there for the past week. A distinguished company of guests will attend the ceremony, and the wide old rooms of the beautiful old Beverley place will be exquisitely decorated in flowers for the occasion.

At the Woman's Club.
"Francis Thompson, the Master of Imagery" was the subject of a subtle and fascinating lecture made by Dr.
Douglas Southall Freeman yesterday afternoon before the members of the Woman's Club. It was the first lecture of the season, and most fitting it was that Dr. Freeman, whose discourses have marked more than one interesting date on the club calendar, should begin the year's program. He opened with a reading from one of the poet's exquisite creations, and there was a march of elfin figures winding up the path of glowing figures winding butterflies among nodding flowers in every line.

Dr. Freeman sketched with delicate touches this poet's pathetic life—a career pathetic beyond words, intent on imbuings instead of material matters, persecuted over and over more frequently with the opium steam than bare existence, and the price of his dreams eked out by peddling matches on street corners of London. Francis Thompson's life covered the period from 1879 to 1907, and his shining, respondent genius, whether inspired by opium, or spurred by his muse, has given us the honeyed blossoms of song from the mind of this humble, modest little man of the street.

A critic has said of the poetry of Francis Thompson that it is the greatest contribution that English verse has received since Tennyson died. In strong and brilliant strokes, with the pointed for all the world to see the heart of childhood, the ideals of womanhood, the mysticism of the ancients and the beauty of all the heavens.
Possessed of a marvelous vocabulary, his fanciful and imagery covered to height and sank to every depth, making aphorisms and similes worthy of a Shakespeare or a Shelley. Likening the day to a soft-robed priest bearing the sun from the light of the gray sanctuary of night out to a waiting, shimmering earth, the master of imagery strung the path with glittering gems of shimmering words down into the deep valley of evening.

The whole lecture was brilliantly done, and the reading of the several bits of poetry from the life work of Francis Thompson, closing with his pathetic little epilogue, made the afternoon one long to be remembered.
Travel Smiles.
The trip of the Colonial Dames yesterday from Richmond to Charles City for the purpose of unveiling two sundials, erected at the birthplaces of Presidents Harrison and Tyler, was a most remarkable and interesting detour.
About twenty-five Dames in automobiles set out from Richmond in the mists of the early morning, making the trip through autumn woods and the sun from the light of the gray sanctuary of night out to a waiting, shimmer-
the path with glittering gems of shimmer-
ing words down into the deep valley
of evening.

things celebrated to-day that are of interest to society. The marriage of Miss Mattie Watkins Baskerville, daughter of Mrs. William O. Baskerville, to John Marge Burton, of Newport News, son of the late Robert Marge Burton, of Prince Edward County, will take place very quietly this evening at 6 o'clock in the home of the bride's aunt, Mrs. Ida W. Ellerson, 316 East Grace Street, with only relatives and a few intimate friends present.
A big church wedding for this evening will be that of Miss Louise Crutch-field, daughter of George Crutchfield, and Dr. Lawrence Taylor Price. The ceremony will be performed in Monumental Church at 8 o'clock, and a brilliant company of guests will be present.

Leave for Wedding.
Mr. and Mrs. C. B. Garnett, Mr. and Mrs. L. C. Garnett, Mrs. G. T. Garnett, Miss Ellen D. Garnett, of Ginter Park, and Miss Juliet Browne Garnett, of Mathews County, left yesterday to attend the Garnett-Crump wedding in Lynchburg to-day. Ensign Junifer Garnett, United States Navy, who is to be best man at the marriage, arrived in Richmond yesterday and accompanied his mother and sister to the wedding.

Baltimore Wedding.
An interesting wedding, which will take place to-morrow evening, will be that of Miss Virginia Hardy Kemp, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Thomas Kemp, to William Congreve Jackson, of Baltimore, formerly of Upperville, Va. The ceremony will take place in the presence of the immediate families at the residence of the bride's parents, 145 West Lantana Street, Baltimore, and will be followed by a reception, to which additional guests have been invited. The maid of honor will be the bride's sister, Miss Agnes Howard Kemp, and the only bridesmaid will be Miss Christabel Hill, of Upper Marlboro, Md. The ribbons will be held by little Miss Rachel Clarke Cooke, the young niece of the bride, and Jack Barreto. The best man will be Holt Page, of Richmond. There will be no ushers.

Close for the Season.
"The Sign of the Green Tea Pot," an attractive little way-side inn at Hillsboro, Albemarle County, has closed for the winter, after a very successful season. The inn was run in the interests of charity, and the proceeds of the interesting gathering places of society in that section of the State almost immediately. Any number of fascinating affairs were given there throughout the summer season, and "The Sign of the Green Tea Pot" will open again next spring.

North Carolina Engagement.
Mrs. Howell Lewis Fry announces the engagement and approaching marriage of her daughter, Frances Moore, to Dr. Edmund Harrison, of the army, to take place on Wednesday evening, November 5, at the home of the bride's mother, in Greensboro, N. C. No cards have been issued. The announcement is of much interest, as both the bride-elect and Dr. Harrison have many relatives and friends.

Wayland-Bowman.
Evergreens, autumn leaves and many lighted candles decorated the Christian Church at Roanoke on Saturday evening, October 25, at 6 o'clock for the marriage of Miss Lucie Myrtle Bowman, daughter of Mrs. Annie E. Bowman, and Edward L. Wayland, son of Mr. and Mrs. William Wayland, of Temple Texas. Rev. W. S. Hoge, who abso-luted at the marriage of the bride's parents, performed the ceremony, and Miss Nina Wayland played the wedding march. Just before the entry of the bride party, Miss Miller, of Washington, sang "Because."

The bride entered the church with her uncle, Thomas P. Yager, of Harrisburg. Her wedding gown was of cherry velvet, and she wore a train of shadow lace. Her hair was dressed in a wreath of lilies of the valley, and she carried a shower bouquet of the same flowers combined with Bride roses.

The maid of honor, Miss Jessie C.
Bowman, sister of the bride, wore a gown of pale blue crepe de chine, trimmed in shadow lace and rhinestones.
She carried a big bouquet of white chrysanthemums. The bridesmaids, Misses Mary and Margaret Goodall, of Staunton, wore the groom's best man, and little Margie Huxstep carried the ring.

The bridesmaids, Misses Bessie Lawrence and Belle Barber, of Emmertown, were dressed alike in blue with over-draperies of shadow lace and bunches of pale pink satin. They carried white chrysanthemums. The ribbons were held by Vivian Gibbs and Vivian Estes, and the ushers were Messrs. Otis Bowman and Frank Weaver.

After a wedding trip that includes Niagara Falls, New York and other Northern points of interest, Mr. and Mrs. Wayland will make their home in Crozet. Guests from a distance attending the wedding were Mrs. Anna Rush, of Raphine; Mr. and Mrs. Mac-Goodall, of Staunton; Mr. and Mrs. T.
P. Yager, of Harrisburg; Mrs. W. H.
Smith, of Charlottesville; Dr. and Mrs.
Carl Bowman, of Waynesboro; Edward Taylor, of Potomac; Miss Allen Miller, of Washington; and Miss Belle Barber, of Emmertown.

Invitations Out.
Mr. and Mrs. W. H. Jenks, of 2323 Grace Street, have issued invitations for the approaching marriage of their daughter, Ella Anderson, to Francis Charles Innes Tyndall, the Annual Meeting.

The annual meeting of the Huguenot Evangelical Society will take place on Wednesday, October 23, at noon in the First Presbyterian Church. The reports of the society will be read and the election of officers will be held.
Rev. Russell G. D. will preside, and will be assisted by Rev. Landon Mason, D. D., and Rev. W. J. Young, D. D. The meeting is a very important one, and a large attendance is most desired.

Organ Recital.
An interesting event in musical circles of Richmond will be the organ recital at St. Thomas Church, Ginter Park, to-night, by Louis C. Weitzel, assisted by W. Douglas Gordon. The recital, which begins at 8:20 o'clock, is for the Chancel Chapter. The public is invited to attend. The program includes the following:

ANCESTRAL ESTATES OFFERED ON MARKET

Extraordinary Land Program Is Announced by England's Chancellor of Exchequer.

BY LA MARQUISE DE FONTENAY.

IN view of the extraordinary land program of England's Chancellor of the Exchequer, Lloyd George, which aims at nothing more nor less than the expropriation by the state, for the benefit of small farmers and peasantry, of land not under cultivation now owned by territorial magnates, it is only to be expected that most of the great nobles should be hastening to sell their ancestral estates.

Until recently, the possession of land by the aristocracy was encouraged by the government, to such an extent that the Premiers have been reluctant to recommend any one to sovereign for a peerage unless it could be shown that he possessed a certain number of thousand acres.
The aim of the Premiers in stipulating this was to convey an assurance to the sovereign that there would always be enough money to maintain the peerage with befitting dignity; while another object which they had in view was the political influence derived from the possession of land. George III's powerful Prime Minister Pitt was wont to assert that any man who enjoyed $50,000 a year derived from land was entitled to a peerage as a matter of right; and many distinctions in the shape of advancement in the peerage, of honorary offices, and of orders of knighthood, such as the Carter, the Thistle, and the St. Patrick, have been bestowed on great landowners not for services rendered, but merely as a recognition of the political influences which they derived from the possession of their broad acres.

The present government, through its Chancellor of the Exchequer, and through his projected legislation, is changing all this, and virtually penalizing the possession of land to such an extent as to compel the territorial magnates to sell, even at a sacrifice, their ancestral estates, in order to escape partial or total expropriation.
Among those who are offering the bulk of their estates for sale are the Duke of Newcastle, the Duke of Grafton, the Earl of Portsmouth, and Lord Cranworth. How little this legislation was looked for by these peers is shown by the fact that the Duke of Grafton's grandson, and heir to his honors and estates, young Viscount Ipswich, who was married last week to Miss Anne Brougham, has been spending several years at the Agricultural College of Wye, in Kent, first as a student, and now as a member of the faculty. Educated at Harrow and Cambridge, he took up, while at the universities, the agricultural courses which have been inaugurated there in conjunction with a fine and large experimental farm which he owns. It is one of the most popular features of Cambridge, though not entirely to the liking of the more conservative older dons.

On leaving Cambridge he joined the agricultural college at Wye, with the aim of perfecting himself in such a fashion in the study of practical and theoretical agriculture as to turn the extensive family estates of his venerable grandfather, the nonagenerarian Duke of Grafton, to far better account than heretofore. Among the students at this College of Wye, is Prince Axel of Denmark, one of the sons of the sailor Prince Waldemar, guest of Mr. and Mrs. Gilmor Minor in this city.

Randolph Owen has returned to Henderson, N. C., after a short visit to his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Ben P. Owen, at "Buck Hill."

Wesley Bevelley, of Ginter Park, has gone to Essex County for a stay of several days with relatives.

Mrs. R. F. Archer, of Vinita, who has been the guest of her brother, Dr. E. J.
Archer, here for several days, has returned to her home.

Miss Martha Chambers has returned to Hollins College after attending the Greene-Chambers wedding last Tuesday.

Miss Jessie Jackson, of this city, will leave to-day for a short visit to relatives in Baltimore.

Ned Archer, of Powhatan County, spent the week end with relatives in Richmond.

Miss L. M. Scott and Miss Lucia Scott are the guests of Mr. and Mrs.
Sam Scott at their home in Glasgow.

Mrs. A. L. Watkins, of Powhatan, is visiting friends at Malvern for a short time.

C. E. Ashburner, of Lynchburg, is visiting relatives here for a few days.

Charles McKimmon, of Raleigh, N. C., is the guest of Henry Litchford, of 216 Park Avenue, for several days.

of Denmark, and a nephew of Queen Alexandra.

The knowledge acquired by Lord Ipswich of agriculture, both at the University of Cambridge and at the College of Wye, will not be lost. For the old duke proposes, like the Duke of Newcastle, and like Lord Portsmouth, Lord Cranworth, and a hundred of other peers who are now selling their estates, to follow the example of the late Duke of Sutherland, and to invest the money thus obtained in land in Canada, where the Dominion government, more enlightened than that of the mother country, encourages the acquisition of land by men possessed of sufficient capital to develop it to their own advantage.

and for that of the commonwealth.
These peers all have the characteristic and time-honored preference of the old nobility for property in land, rather than in stocks and bonds.
Land appears to them now, as it has done for hundreds of years past, as a safer investment than industrial or commercial enterprises, and, above all, more respectable. That is why Lord George's new land bill, with its menace, not merely of increased taxation but of expropriation at government valuation, will give rise to a considerable influx of English Scottish and Irish peers into Canada, bent, like the late Duke of Sutherland, on exchanging their possessions in the old country for land in the Dominion.

Lord Ipswich is a fine, stalwart young fellow, almost as tall and broad as his uncle, the late Earl of Euston, who, an Anak in stature, on several occasions represented King Edward, prior and subsequent to his accession to the throne, at great Masonic gatherings in the United States and in Canada. He is descended in the direct male line from King Charles II., who created the dukedom of Grafton for his illegitimate son by Barbara Villiers, Duchess of Cleveland. As such, Lord Ipswich's grandfather, the present Duke of Grafton, who is ninety-three years of age, has the right to bear the royal arms of England, France, Scotland and Ireland, described by a bar sinister.

When I announced in these letters the other day the death, in Paris, of the president of the French Jockey Club, the Duc de Fenezac, without male issue, I predicted that his dukom would soon be usurped by some other member of the Montesquieu family, although the patent for the King Louis XVIII, created the dukom of Fenezac, in 1824, explicitly restricted its descent to the new duke's nephew, Raymond, the son of the duke's sister, Isidore, and to Raymond de Montesquieu-Fenezac, son of the Duke of Fenezac, in the male line only. There are no descendants in the male line from Raymond, second Duke of Fenezac, left. The late duke had two daughters, the elder of whom was married to Count Francois de Maille, and they have inherited his property.

The dukedom has now been coolly assumed by the Marquis Joseph de Montesquieu, who is descended from another brother of the Duke de Fenezac, of the Restoration, and who is not, according to the patent of the dukedom, at all in the line of succession. It is a most flagrant piece of usurpation. Had the Marquis de Montesquieu had the impudence to send a notification to the leading organs of the French press of his assumption of the dukedom, and as he is very rich, through his wife, who was one of the heiresses of her multimillionaire grandmother, the widow Cecile Heine, and has lots of money to carry off the usurpation, the title will be generally accorded to him.

He will not, however, be permitted to use it in any official document.
The government of the republic, although it professes to despise titles, is very severe about this matter. It will permit no nobiliary title to be used in official documents, or for any official purpose, unless it has been registered by the keeper of the Great Seal of France, on the succession of its holder; and this dignitary, who is also the Minister of Justice, is extremely strict in refusing to register any title of nobility, unless the applicant is able to furnish the most convincing documentary evidence that he is the legal heir thereof, according to French law.

The laws in France still in existence, and dealing with the descent of nobiliary titles, restrict them to the descent in the male line, except in certain rare cases, duly specified in the patent. Unfortunately, there are no such penalties in France as are provided in Germany, Austria, and number of other continental countries, in the way of fines and imprisonment, for the unwarranted use of nobiliary titles for social purposes.

MURDER FOLLOWS RECONCILIATION

At Peace With Husband, Woman Slain by Admirer, Who Commits Suicide.

(Special to The Times-Dispatch.)
Wethers, a white man, shot and killed Margaret Shaffer, this afternoon at the latter's home, and then killed himself.
There had been strained relations between Mrs. Shaffer and her husband, Frank Shaffer, caused by the attentions of Wethers to the former. A reconciliation between them had taken place, and her husband expected to take her to Boston on Wednesday, where he had obtained work. Two shots were fired into Mrs. Shaffer's side. The murderer then went into another room and placed the pistol in his mouth and fired. Both died in a few minutes.
The tragedy occurred in the presence of the mother of Mrs. Shaffer, Mrs.
Shaffer leaves three children, the oldest nine and the youngest one year old.

UNION OF CHURCHES TO BE CONSIDERED

Important Matter Before Methodist Protestant Conference in North Carolina.

(Special to The Times-Dispatch.)
Winston-Salem, N. C., October 27.—
The Annual Conference of the Methodist Protestant Church of North Carolina will convene at High Point on Wednesday, November 13. The most important matter to be considered at this conference is the proposition to unite the Methodist Protestant Church with the United Brethren in Christ. A year and a half ago the general conference which met in Baltimore called upon the twenty-five annual conferences in that body for an expression of their wishes as to union with the United Brethren. Since that time the matter has been widely discussed.
Fourteen of the twenty-five annual conferences of the Methodist Protestant General Conference have reported favorably on the proposition. All of the others will vote between now and December 1, and if at that time it is shown that two-thirds of annual conferences favor the proposition, the general conference, which does not meet in regular session until 1916, will be called in special session to ratify this action, after which, at a joint conference of the two bodies, the union will be consummated.
The General Conference of United Brethren has already unanimously voted in favor of the proposition.
